School

The Primary School are collecting tokens as part of the Flora Cooking with Schools project. The tokens are in any tub of Flora margarine and can be registered at www.cookingwithschools.com or sent to the school. With a value of 20p each it is hoped several new pieces of cooking equipment can be obtained through this scheme.

Book launch

Picture Attached Mary Beith writer and Sally Orr illustrator signing copies of their book at the Loch Croispol Bookshop

A very successful evening was held at the Loch Croispol Bookshop last week when Mary Beith writer and Sally Orr illustrator were present to sign copies of their new Gaelic children's book. Nt-Ubhal Eunta. Mary gave a short introduction of how the story was based on a story about an Apple still hanging on a tree in Tongue in mid winter. Sally described how she created the pictures by building up layers of the artwork until she reached the final illustrations. Representatives of the publishers were present and they gave a description of the publishing and final design process before everyone present was invited to participate in the buffet. Shona Munro from Bettyhill provided an excellent bag pipe introduction and sang beautifully in Gaelic during the evening.
